VOICES & VISION

IN INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

Celebrating 30 Years of the ISEP Network, 1979-2009

The ISEP Network Supports Your Campus Internationalization Initiatives

Student Programs

- » ISEP-Exchange: reciprocal tuition, housing, and meal exchanges among US and international members
- » ISEP-Direct: affordable, fee-paid study away programs
- » Range of full-year, semester, and summer options
- » Access to academic immersion, extracurricular activities, volunteer opportunities, service learning, internships, and scholarships

Institutional Support Services

- » International and academic mobility with one agreement
- » Consolidated exchange balance management
- » Online and print materials for student recruitment
- » Enrollment in student health insurance
- » SEVIS administration and J-1 visa sponsorship

Professional Development

- » ISEP conferences, symposia, and workshops
- » Training events and teleconferences
- » Council of Advisors, Board of Directors, and working groups
- » Organized site tours to member institutions
- » Faculty outreach initiatives

Networking

- » Consortium of international and US members
- » Global exposure and member recognition
- » ISEP events hosted at international conferences
- » ISEP Ambassadors for recruiting participants and welcoming visiting students
- » Social media connections on Facebook

ISEP is an independent, self-supporting nonprofit organization serving over 300 member institutions in 42 countries. Since 1979, ISEP has provided access to an affordable range of diverse study opportunities to over 34,000 students worldwide.

Mission of ISEP:

- » Promotes academic and cross-cultural learning through a worldwide collaborative network of higher education institutions.
- » Facilitates academic mobility through affordable and diverse exchange and study programs.
- » Enhances institutional infrastructures for these programs and fosters campus internationalization.

President's Welcome

Over the past 30 years, the commitment, creativity, and determination of institutions and individuals within the ISEP Network have turned dreams into reality for over 34,000 students worldwide, many of whom may not have had access to international education otherwise.

Although there have been times of uncertainty over the course of its history, particularly in 1997 when government funding ended, ISEP continues to flourish as a comprehensive international education organization serving over 300 member institutions in a growing number of ways. When I joined ISEP in 1981, I was responsible for placing all 300 students in reciprocal exchanges among fewer than 75 institutions. Today, over 2,600 students annually participate in reciprocal ISEP-Exchanges, fee-paid ISEP-Direct programs, short-term study options, and a budding number of service learning and internship opportunities.

Although national trends show that only five US states hosted 43% of incoming international students, ISEP fosters international student diversity at nearly 150 campuses throughout 45 states. A well-tested model combining ISEP-Exchange and ISEP-Direct enrollments in Ghana has also provided scholarships for 44 Ghanaian faculty and staff to pursue graduate study in the United States. A similar program operates in Costa Rica, and others are under development. Additionally, campus representatives meet regularly for professional development and training programs during gatherings of the ISEP Network at conferences, symposia, study tours, and workshops.

Because member universities recognize that the benefits of participating in a global network allows them to do more collectively than individually, ISEP is constantly expanding, providing access to a diverse range of academic partners for all members. US universities connect with over 150 institutions abroad in 42 countries. International members connect with nearly 150 US colleges and universities as well as gain access to institutions in many other countries through International-to-International linkages.

This 30th anniversary year is a celebration of ISEP's collaborative model—our voices and vision—that has become so integral to strengthening and expanding access to international education for many campuses. We welcome you to the ISEP Network and this annual report highlighting our accomplishments of the past year.

Blaine A. Brownell
Chair, 2007-2011
ISEP Board of Directors

Message from the Board Chair

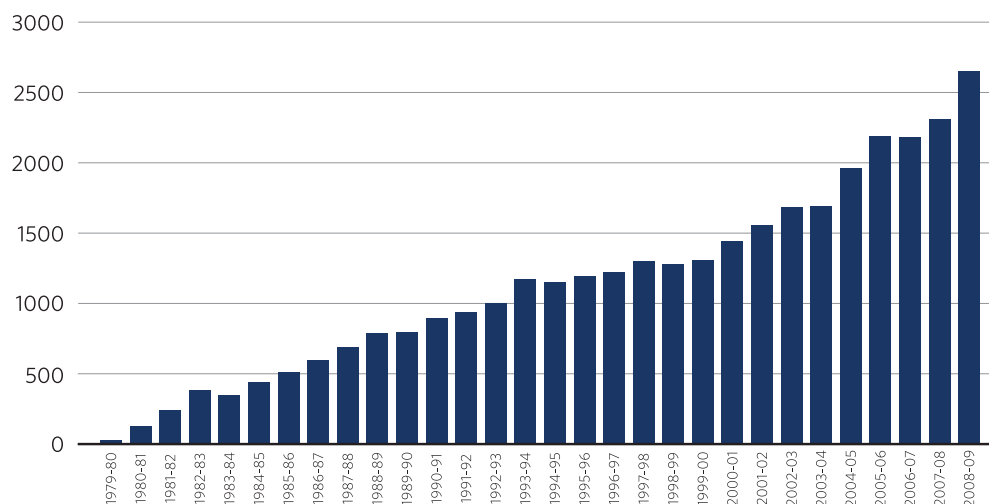

In 1979, I returned from a year as a Fulbright lecturer in Japan, an experience that ignited my lifelong interest in international education. That same year, ISEP began with only 28 students from seven institutions. Today, the ISEP Network is 300 members strong in 42 countries.

For nearly 30 years I have had the opportunity to observe ISEP from different perspectives at four member universities: as international program director, department chair, dean, graduate dean, provost, and president. Throughout this time I have admired ISEP's goals and values, which are reflected in the dedication of ISEP Coordinators and staff who work hard to ensure that all ISEP students have an experience of a lifetime.

I also have many gratifying memories of ISEP students, such as the undergraduate from Colombia who, placed in a second-year medical school program with no patient contact allowed, more than held his own; and the American student who, through close supervision and individual study, completed a full year of academic credit in Ghana despite the faculty officially being on strike. These are just two examples of how the ISEP Network has always provided students with unique experiences and personal attention, which are the foundation for ISEP's efforts to broaden its reach as a significant global resource for international education.

The ISEP Board of Directors is cognizant of both this proud history and the enormous potential for future service. It is committed to working with ISEP management to identify new and appropriate ways for the organization to respond to expanding member institution needs to prepare students for success in a global, multicultural environment. This will require innovative approaches and a willingness to experiment with new possibilities—but always to further the values and strengths that have defined ISEP over the last 30 years as a unique organization. The Board invites your support and your comments.

THREE DECADES OF ISEP PARTICIPANT GROWTH

Council of Advisors

The Council of Advisors provides an important forum for discussion among coordinators and staff on program development and assessment; membership standards; and ISEP processes, policies, and events. As representatives from institutions throughout the United States and around the world, the Council makes recommendations that provide valuable feedback to ISEP staff and result in specific actions. The working group structure provides a framework to guide discussions and planning.

“ISEP not only enables our students to have the experience of a lifetime, but this amazing network also provides unique opportunities for professional development to its members. It has been extremely rewarding to work with colleagues from member institutions, the ISEP staff, and the ISEP Board on common goals and a shared vision, and I look forward to a great year ahead.”

Heidi Gregori-Gahan, Council of Advisors Chair, ISEP

WORKING GROUPS

Program Assessment and Learning Outcomes

- » Consolidating research by member institutions and ISEP on program assessment and student learning outcomes
- » Analyzing data collected in the ISEP evaluation process
- » Utilizing results to enhance campus internationalization

Membership Standards

- » Development of best practices in cooperation with member institutions and ISEP staff
- » Focus group analysis on best templates for host site orientation programs
- » Development of a mentoring program for new coordinators

Admissions and ISEP Processes

- » Analyzing and advising on TOEFL language requirements
- » Developing online application and ways to streamline the application process
- » Reviewing processes regarding host confirmations and Institutional Information Sheets

Program Development

- » Working with ISEP staff on regional strategic plans
- » Collaborating on initiatives in Africa, Europe, Latin America, Asia, and for general program development
- » Serving as resources for establishing contacts and regional networking

Standing Committee on ISEP Events

- » Collaborating with ISEP on the scheduling, location, and strategic planning of events
- » Exploring how to best utilize the volunteer network and advisory members

REGIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

Africa

ISEP welcomes the University of Botswana to the ISEP Network, along with the new summer programs offered by Stellenbosch University in South Africa.

Asia

Nihon University – Mishima is now part of the ISEP Network in Japan. In addition, ISEP Japan held its second annual conference in September at Toyo University, another member with dramatically increased exchange activity.

Europe

Vesalius University in Brussels became ISEP's first Belgian member and will offer ISEP-Direct programs, as well as a unique graded internship program, beginning in early 2010. University West in Sweden has also joined the network and will offer courses in English in fields ranging from political science to engineering.

Latin America

Puerto Rican members now accept both US and international students. As another regional success, summer program participation at Universidad Nacional-UNA in Costa Rica exceeded expectations.

Oceania

ISEP welcomes the newest Australian member, the University of Western Sydney, offering a wide variety of academic fields and internship options for students. The University of the South Pacific in Fiji has been restored to active member status.

USA

Overall student participation from US institutions remains strong. New members in 2009 are Arkansas State University, Carroll College, Mesa State College, Millsaps College, Northern Arizona University, and Westminster College of Salt Lake City.

Programs

This year, with a 10% increase in student applications, ISEP continued to move toward its strategic goal of establishing a globally balanced network. To this end, ISEP is proud to have added new members in Belgium and Botswana, bringing the total number of countries in the network to 42. Responding to member institution requests for more short-term options, new summer programs have also been added in South Africa and Costa Rica. In addition, to meet the needs of the growing network, ISEP-Central has shifted toward a regionally focused structure and dedicated a full-time staff position to manage membership standards and US member relations. These efforts all reflect ISEP's commitment to campus internationalization, program development, and strategic growth.

“ISEP programs remain strong thanks to the shared vision of our diverse network of over 300 members.”

Linda Jewell, Vice President, ISEP

The ISEP Student Experience

ISEP Photo Essay Contest

The semi-annual ISEP Photo Essay contest invites returning students to capture the essence of their ISEP experience with stories and images. All entries are posted on the ISEP website; many are included in ISEP publications. The 2010 US Student Catalog cover, for example, features Fall 2008 contest winner Adena Lane from University of Tennessee, Knoxville, USA, who attended the Universidad Popular Autónoma del Estado de Puebla, Mexico. All ISEP participants are encouraged to enter this contest.

“I saw places I’ve seen only in pictures or movies—but now they are personal, as I have a story to tell about each of them... I wanted to show myself that the world I knew was a microscopic part of the big picture.”

Kristine Pleika-Izika, University of Latvia
to San José State University, USA

“If you embrace the aspects that seem unfamiliar or strange, then you’ll begin to experience the world through a different view and see your own culture in a new light.”

AMBASSADOR OF THE YEAR WINNER

ISEP recognizes David Kirk of Edinburgh Napier University, who went to Bellarmine University, USA, as the 2008–09 Ambassador of the Year. “We have increased the number of ISEP applications quite significantly this year, and I believe this is in a big way directly related to Dave’s outstanding efforts,” commended his ISEP Coordinator, Claire Hope. David notes, “The role of Ambassador has challenged my time management skills, public speaking ability, and event management skills to name just a few. It has developed me as an individual and I am excited to continue promoting ISEP and encouraging my fellow students to study abroad in the future.”

ISEP Ambassador Program

The ISEP Ambassador program is in its third year and has grown to over 200 participants. Ambassadors assist with a variety of tasks: volunteering in the international office, welcoming incoming students, recruiting outbound students, promoting ISEP at study abroad fairs, and participating in the ISEP Facebook group. Students and home or host ISEP Coordinators may nominate ambassadors, who receive a customized toolkit, promotional materials, and an ISEP t-shirt. Ambassadors agree to participate in at least three activities each semester and submit a log of their accomplishments. Each year, one student also receives the ISEP Ambassador of the Year award.

Service Learning Initiatives

Volunteering or service learning opportunities at many ISEP universities provide unique insight and integration into the host culture. For example, ISEP participants at Willamette University, USA, can volunteer in the local community by sharing their language and culture at public school presentations. This innovative program, Language in Motion, is now in its third year of operation and has grown to over 60 classroom visits in the past semester. International students and study abroad alumni join in the opportunity to reflect on their cultural experiences and bring global diversity into local classrooms.

Current ISEP Ambassadors are already active on their campuses. Insuk Seok (above)—who went from Ajou University, Korea, to Truman State University, USA—represented ISEP at the Ajou study abroad fair. She also responds to inquiries from prospective students, participates in discussions on the ISEP Facebook page, welcomes visiting ISEP students to Ajou, and distributes ISEP posters and Ambassador postcards on campus. She writes, “My experience as an ISEP exchange student and ambassador has helped me a lot. It allowed me to get a really great job finally! I’m so happy that I am an ISEP Ambassador this semester, and I thank you so much for giving me this opportunity to participate.”

Language in Motion: Jan Taborsky shares his experiences from France and the Czech Republic with public school children in Salem, Oregon. He writes, “I seek to be a role model for children who don’t get a chance to travel.”
