

RECOMMENDED PROGRAMS FOR BLACK & AFRICAN-HERITAGE SEEKING STUDENTS

Study in Ghana | University of Ghana ●

Delicious street food, great beaches, and impactful historic sites await you in Accra, Ghana. Choose from extensive course options focused on African history, culture, and the African diaspora, in addition to a strong business, STEM, and liberal arts curriculum. ISEP's Resident Director can arrange volunteer projects to help you get involved in the community.

Study in South Africa | University of Johannesburg ● ●

Johannesburg is one of the largest cities on the African continent and is the economic and cultural center of South Africa. A melting pot of cultures from the African continent and beyond, students have easy access to explore the country's seven World Heritage sites. Global studies and social science courses focus on Africa's history, politics, and culture.

Study in Botswana | University of Botswana ● ●

From mouth-watering food to thrilling nightlife, Gaborone is a vibrant city with easy access to the natural landscape of Sub-Saharan Africa. Take courses in African studies, environmental science, engineering, humanities and social sciences. Course options include "Migration and Globalization," "African Social Thought," and "African Oral Narratives."

Study in France - Réunion Island | Université de la Réunion ●

Perfect for a student looking for a non-traditional location with a French and Creole twist, this French island in the Indian Ocean is a blend of African, Indian, and European cultures. Take courses in French in Creole studies, ethnology and anthropology in a multiracial society, and African post-colonial literature and culture.

Study in London | London Metropolitan University ●

A global center for finance, fashion and media, London is also a cultural hub for Black Britain. More than 50% of students at London Met come from an under-represented background. Join the "Empowering London" course to get involved in social entrepreneurship or take a course on Racism and Ethnicity, Decolonisation, or Diverse London.

Study in Paris | American Business School of Paris ●

Follow in the footsteps of African-American creatives like James Baldwin, Josephine Baker, and Ta-Nehisi Coates and spend some time exploring Paris. ABS-Paris has a student body of 70% international students, making for a rich cultural experience. Take courses in English in Business Administration, Management, Economics, Marketing, Finance, and Fashion Management.

Study in Fiji | University of the South Pacific ● ●

Study at this multicultural university and discover the unique culture and identity of the Pacific Islands and especially Fiji's indigenous population, who proudly claim their African ancestry. Take courses in business, marine studies, tourism, and more. Many courses also explore the development issues and challenges faced by Pacific Islands.

Study in Costa Rica | Universidad de Costa Rica ●

Take courses in Spanish while living in the historic capital city of San José. You'll have the support of two on-site coordinators, live with a host family, and enjoy planned activities and excursions. UCR incorporates the history of the African diaspora into many of its Area Studies courses, providing opportunities to learn about Black history in Latin America.

Study in Ecuador | The Center for Interamerican Studies ●

Ecuador's largest city and a major port, Guayaquil is the gateway to the Galapagos Islands and Pacific beaches. Explore colorful neighborhoods and enjoy fresh seafood and produce year-round. Experience the impact of Afro-Ecuadorian music and culture. Most coursework incorporates the impact of ethics, diversity, and societal influences. Most classes are taught in Spanish.

Study in Puerto Rico | University of Puerto Rico - Rio Piedras ●

University of Puerto Rico's flagship Rio Piedras campus is located in the vibrant capital city of San Juan. One of the top destinations in the Caribbean, San Juan is filled with rich cultural traditions, natural beauty and cosmopolitan elegance. UPR offers courses taught in Spanish in a variety of fields. Discover the influence of Afro-Puerto Ricans on the food, music, dance,