My ISEP program gave me the opportunity to experience new things that I wouldn't have been able to study at home. I learned how to break out of my comfort zone and learned many new skills on top of what I learned in the classroom. Every day was an experience to learn something big and challenge myself. I met the best people abroad as well which made it all the better!”

My study abroad experience in Ghana was full of moments that showed me who I was. Interacting with locals, pushing my personal boundaries and learning about the history of West Africa gave me a perspective that I just wouldn't have access to if I didn't live there. Most importantly, I learned that we are all a lot more connected than we are different, and I saw that when we put those differences aside, we can create bonds that last a lifetime."
